

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a system and method for checking authorization of remote configuration operations. The method comprises storing at least one image frame such that content of the image frame is stored in a plurality of memory pages in a 5 memory. The method further comprises sending the image frame to the display one memory page at a time to refresh the display.